BRITISH TRADE COMBINE

Thousand Business Men Unite to Push Export Trade Through Organization.

The weekly list of trade chances gathered by the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is given below.

The organizing the other day of the Allied Industries Corporation to carry on the overseas trade, is really the founding of a gigantic company controlled by forty-four mills and patterned after the newly organized British Manufacturers Foreign Trade Corporation, which mention was made in this column in the early spring.

The English method creates an organization of ten members each subscribing roughly $500 or $1,000 a year. With such a fund and an organization of such a character strong inducements are offered to business men to become foreign "agents in charge."

This corporation, really a holding company, is controlled directly by the firms and corporations uniting to form it. Its aims are economic in the sense that it is designed to effect reconciliation of conflicting interests and strength to meet competition from other countries, which seems certain to appear in a highly concentrated and powerful form.

Americans May Combine.

Passage of the Webb bill by Congress allows American business men similarly to combine to capture foreign trade.

Manufacturers and producers in England intend to make available for all members of their foreign trade corporations the number of the item class ability as representatives abroad, men who will possess a thorough knowledge of business conditions in the different countries to which they may be appointed. They will be known as agents in charge.

It will be their business to find and induce the local selling agents for individual firms, to look out for new trade openings, to report on the general reputation of prospective customers and generally to do the business of the interest of all firms in the organization.

To increase trade will be the sole object of their employment by the corporation, and they will be expected to fill the requirements of the corporation or stand ready to be replaced by more capable and energetic representatives.

Addresses of persons and firms may be obtained through The Sun. Questions regarding published items should be on separate sheets, a sheet to each item, and the number of the item class in all cases be stated. The Sun does not furnish credit ratings or assume any responsibility as to the standing of business men or firms, and no special precaution should be taken in all cases.
